What is a Company of Biologists Travelling Fellowship?

- The Company of Biologists' journals - Development, Journal of Cell Science, Journal of Experimental Biology and DMM \(Disease Models & Mechanisms\) - offer Travelling Fellowships to graduate students and post-doctoral researchers wishing to undertake collaborative visits to other laboratories. These fellowships are designed to offset the cost of travel and related expenses.
- Visit length is usually between two weeks and three months.
- The maximum value of an award is £3,000 or currency equivalent.
- Travelling Fellowships do not support attendance at scientific meetings, conferences or training courses.

Who can apply for a Travelling Fellowship?

- Early career scientists, which includes graduate students and post-doctoral researchers.
- Applications are strictly limited to one journal per round of funding per person and only one person per home laboratory.
- Travelling Fellowships can only be applied for once every 2 years per applicant from any of the Company's journals.
- Travelling Fellowships cannot be awarded to collaborations that have already commenced before the decision date (decision and deadline dates are published on the website).
- Although there is no restriction on nationality, we are unable to pay awards to recipients in jurisdictions, countries or regions of the world subject to sanctions, embargoes or other political trade restrictions put in place by the United Nations, the EU or the UK.

How are applications assessed?

- An Editor of the journal to which the application has been submitted will referee the proposal, being an expert in the area of research covered by the journal.
- Applications will be evaluated for their merit across several attributes, including suitability of the host lab, merit of the research proposal, applicant's track record, benefit to the applicant's home lab/institute and financial feasibility.
- Applicants will be informed of the outcome of their application within the week following the decision date (decision and deadline dates are published on the website).
