

Workshop

Creative Science Writing

26 - 29 June 2022
Wiston House
West Sussex
UK

Funded places for aspiring writers

Are you thinking about writing a popular book or essay to share your scientific passions, would you like advice on how to realise your dream, and would you like to meet others on the same journey? If so, this Workshop is for you.

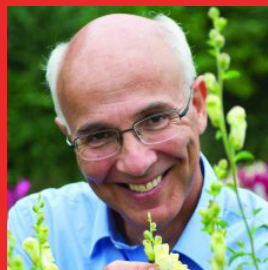

This Creative Science Writing Workshop aims to nurture new voices in science writing (popular science, social implications of science, science-related fiction, or other forms of creative writing) by bringing aspiring writers, established authors and agents together to exchange approaches and ideas.

The Workshop has a strong practical element, with free writing periods, informal discussions, and sessions in which the group will consider writing by each of the participants in turn and give constructive feedback.

Organisers

Buzz Baum
